

DAEHNERT
COUNSELING

What really are characteristics of intimacy in a relationship?
Restoring Lives, Embracing Freedom

1. Each person has a separate identity and gives and receives without losing separateness
  - a. Good boundaries here in essence; what defines you and the other?
2. Each is able to talk openly about significant issues
3. Each assumes personal responsibility for his or her level of happiness
  - a. Each is responsible to take care of him/herself as able to
4. The couple can play together
5. The couple can fight constructively
  - a. There is constructive and destructive honesty
6. Each makes an attempt to keep the romance alive.
  - a. It is not just one's responsibility to plan a date night either
7. Each consider the other an equal in the relationship and both demonstrate concern for one another
  - a. Wives and Husbands should submit to one another
8. Each is growing and open to new experiences
  - a. If one is not growing, the relationship will not only grow stagnate but also deteriorate over time
9. Each can find meaning outside of the relationship and finds solitude at times from the other
  - a. There is a high need for both to have outside friendships but not at the cost of the relationship!
10. There is no manipulation in relationship
  - a. This includes passive aggressive behavior
11. There is no assumption for ownership for the other where there's enablement
  - a. Each is responsible to, not for the other
12. Each shows flexibility in the roles
13. Each is able to disclose inner feelings and thoughts with the other
  - a. No excuses men
14. Each has a desire to give to the other
15. Each allows the other a sense of privacy
16. Each encourages the other to become all he/she is able to become
  - a. There's an encouragement for each to fulfill their "purpose"
17. Each is committed fully to one another